INTRODUCTION

Crime is a real thing, and it can happen to anyone at any time. You want to protect yourself and your family in an emergency. You want the freedom to go anywhere with the assurance that someone is watching out for you and your loved ones no matter where they are.

BACKGROUND

The most common crime, larceny/theft, is defined by the FBI as “the unlawful taking, carrying, leading, or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another.” These crimes include theft without threat of violence. When a thief unlawfully enters a home or business to commit a theft, it is burglary, the second most common crime. Following closely behind are aggravated assault and motor vehicle theft. This means that within your home, in your car, or just walking around, you or your loved ones could be a victim of any of these alarming, and sometimes violent, crimes.
